To the 1958 graduates

Years from now when leafing through these pages, seeking to revive lingering memories of Art School days - memories of scenes and faces made nostalgic and remote by the inevitable lapse of time, perhaps you will pause at the faculty faces and wonder a bit if you are still remembered by them.
Rest assured that they will have been listening eagerly for significant sounds of your activities in the field of art to be borne backwards towards them on the wind. For they have learned to recognize your successes as the only reliable symbol of their own success.

To the 1955 Graduates

Years from now when looking through these pages, seeking to revive lingering memories of Art School days - memories of scenes and faces made nostalgic and remote by the inevitable lapse of time, perhaps you will pause at the faculty faces, but wonder a bit if you are still remembered by them.

Rest assured that they will have been listening eagerly for significant sounds of your activity in the field of ART to be borne backwards toward them on the wind. For they have yearned to recognize your successes as the only reliable symbol of their own success.

PATRICK GAVIN

September 1937 – February 1957

Perhaps I was too close to Mr. Gavin to have seen him clearly, but to what I saw, and knew, I became very much attached. Most of the faculty must have felt the same way, for his quick grasp of the subject, his human approach and his verbal thrusts and parries — enlivened all faculty conversations and arguments.

Teaching art was, for him, a labor of love. A class is a captive audience, and a man who likes to talk might be tempted to exploit the situation for his own gratification, but no matter how fluently Mr. Gavin's words came, no matter how inexhaustibly his ideas explored and exposed the facets of a subject, his purpose was to contribute to the understanding of his students so that they felt themselves involved in something solid and important. He kept the discipline of the classroom from being dry and dull by dispensing a rich and juicy, but scholarly mixture of facts, humor and apt allusions. He would appear amongst his students with a goodly portion of the school library in his arms and proceed to recreate the works and lives of the great artists of the past, making their vicissitudes and victories useful and applicable to the present.

He was considered conservative in his teaching and his painting but more than once he was heard to say that his interest in the study of art was first stimulated by seeing reproductions of the works of Picasso, Matisse and Roualt, and actually, his understanding of contemporary art was equal to that of some who practice it.

His death was a severe blow to the school, but the loss was not a total loss, for the full significance of a teacher's strength is measured by the extent to which his students can make use of what he has given them when he is no longer with them.

Otis Philbrick

ON THE OCCASION OF RECEIVING THE HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF FINE ARTS FROM MOORE INSTITUTE OF ART, SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY, GORDON L. REYNOLDS RECEIVED THIS CITATION.

ARTIST, EDUCATOR, ADMINISTRATOR; HONOR-GRADUATE OF THE MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL OF ART, GRADUATE STUDENT AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY, COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, AND THE UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA, YOU HAVE DEDICATED YOUR LIFE WITH SINGLENESS OF PURPOSE AND RARE DEVOTION TO PUBLIC SERVICE IN THE ARTS AND ART EDUCATION.

YOU BEGAN AS A TEACHER, THEN SERVED AS A SUPERVISOR, AND COLLEGE INSTRUCTOR OF ART. IN 1939 YOU BECAME PRESIDENT OF THE MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL OF ART, AND DIRECTOR OF ART EDUCATION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

YOU HAVE GIVEN OVER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF LEADERSHIP AND INSPIRATIONAL SERVICE IN ART EDUCATION ASSOCIATIONS. YOU SERVED AS CHAIRMAN OF MANY COMMITTEES, AND AS VICE PRESIDENT AND PRESIDENT OF THE EASTERN ARTS ASSOCIATION. YOU WERE A DIRECTOR OF THE NATIONAL ART EDUCATION ASSOCIATION AND THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOLS OF DESIGN. YOU SERVED YOUR COUNTRY IN TIME OF WAR, WERE DECORATED BY THE PRESIDENT GENERAL OF THE ITALIAN RED CROSS, AND RECEIVED CITATIONS FROM THE BOSTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND THE FEDERAL CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION. IN ADDITION TO EXHIBITING THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES, YOU HAVE DESIGNED AND PAINTED MURALS IN BRAZIL, FRENCH WEST AFRICA AND EGYPT.
